ABOUT ME

I am a curious and detail-oriented full-stack developer who enjoys building clean and functional web applications. I have worked on various coding projects, both solo and with teams, and I always look for ways to improve user experience and performance. I love experimenting with new technologies, solving real problems through smart code, and learning from every project I join. Outside of development, I like to explore design trends, automate tasks, and share ideas with like-minded people. I believe good code can make everyday life easier and open new opportunities for everyone.

WORK EXPERIENCE

project manager and developer

- Our startup focuses on building a simple yet powerful AI chat solution designed for local businesses and communities. The goal is to help people get fast, clear answers to everyday questions — from local services to basic support — using an intelligent chatbot trained in multiple languages. We want to make modern AI accessible and useful for everyone, even in small neighbourhoods and communities. Our Chat AI combines easy setup, user-friendly design, and practical automation so that small businesses and service providers can save time, work smarter, and connect better with people.

full-stack developer

- I handle both frontend and backend, from beautiful interfaces to reliable databases and APIs. Right now, I focus on projects that solve real problems for people and help local communities and startups grow online. I love learning new tools, improving my skills, and delivering results that make clients happy.
